North Korea's Kim Jong Un to join Putin at China military parade

North Korea's Kim Jong Un will attend China's Victory Day parade in Beijing on 3 September, alongside Vladimir Putin, marking a rare foreign trip and a major diplomatic win for Xi Jinping. The parade, commemorating Japan's 1945 surrender, will showcase China's latest military power with tens of thousands of troops and advanced weaponry in Tiananmen Square. Kim's presence, the first since 1959, highlights deepening ties with Beijing and Moscow, as Xi pushes for a new world order. The event also comes amid Donald Trump's attempts to engage Kim and negotiate with Russia over Ukraine, ahead of a potential Asia visit.

US tells Denmark to 'calm down' over alleged Greenland influence operation

The US has asked Denmark to "calm down" after its envoy in Copenhagen was summoned over reports of covert American activity in Greenland aimed at fostering secession. Danish intelligence has warned of foreign influence campaigns, while Foreign Minister Lars Lokke Rasmussen stressed that any interference in the kingdom's affairs is unacceptable. Washington dismissed the claims but reaffirmed strong ties with Denmark and Greenland. The issue follows President Trump's repeated statements about wanting to annex Greenland and Vice President JD Vance's criticism of Danish underinvestment. Copenhagen insists Greenland cannot be annexed, despite fears of external attempts to shape its future.

Spain and Portugal wildfires drive worst EU season on record

A record one million hectares have burned across the EU this year, the worst wildfire season since records began in 2006. Spain and Portugal were hardest hit, with 684,000 hectares scorched on the Iberian Peninsula alone—about 1% of its land area. Spain lost over 400,000 hectares, six times its average, while Portugal saw 270,000 hectares burn, nearly five times the norm. Fires devastated forested regions, national parks, and sections of the Camino de Santiago. The EU launched its largest firefighting deployment, but smoke still spread to France and the UK. Scientists link the worsening Mediterranean fire season directly to climate change.
