 Oil rises on modest OPEC+ output hike, Russia supply concern

Oil prices rose modestly on Tuesday as OPEC+ agreed to a smaller-than-expected production increase, with only an additional 137,000 barrels per day scheduled from October, easing oversupply fears. Brent crude climbed about 0.77% to $66.53 per barrel, and U.S. West Texas Intermediate rose roughly 0.8% to $62.76. Speculation of tighter supply due to potential new U.S. sanctions on Russian oil also lent upward momentum.

 Dollar hits 7-week low as jobs gloom heightens Fed cut chances

The U.S. dollar slumped to a nearly seven-week low amid rising concerns over a weakening jobs market and expectations of significant Federal Reserve rate cuts. The dollar index dropped to around 97.3, as markets anticipated up to 800,000 job losses in upcoming employment revisions, boosting odds of a 25 basis-point cut in September. Political tensions rose too, with the Trump administration preparing a critique of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.
