Thailand and Cambodia halt fierce border conflict with second ceasefire

Thailand and Cambodia signed a renewed ceasefire on Dec. 27 to end 20 days of border fighting that killed at least 101 people and displaced over 500,000. The deal follows the collapse of an earlier truce backed by U.S. President Donald Trump and Malaysia's Anwar Ibrahim. Defence ministers said troops will hold current positions, avoid reinforcements and protect civilians, with ASEAN monitoring. Talks, including with China, continue; border demarcation is excluded. Thailand may free 18 Cambodian soldiers after 72 hours.

U.S.-backed airstrikes in Nigeria hit two ISIS-linked camps, government says

U.S.-backed airstrikes in Nigeria hit two Islamic State-linked camps in the Bauni Forest of Sokoto State, Nigeria's government said on Dec. 27. The operation, approved by President Bola Tinubu, used U.S. intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance and involved MQ-9 Reaper drones firing GPS-guided munitions from maritime platforms in the Gulf of Guinea. Officials said the camps hosted foreign ISIS fighters arriving from the Sahel and were planning major attacks with local allies.

Spanish family of four missing after boat sinks off Indonesia

Four members of a Spanish family – a father and three children – are missing after a boat carrying 11 people capsized off Indonesia in rough weather, authorities said. The accident happened Friday night in the Padar Island Strait near Labuan Bajo, with waves reported up to three metres. The mother and one daughter were rescued, along with four crew members and a tour guide. Rescuers searched through Saturday, found debris, then halted overnight and plan to resume Sunday morning.
