UN Under Attack: Israel Raids Jerusalem Headquarters

Israeli authorities raided the UN Palestinian refugee agency's (UNRWA) East Jerusalem headquarters on Monday, raising the Israeli flag over the compound. Israel claimed the action was due to unpaid taxes, though UNRWA has not used the building since early this year after Israel ordered it to vacate and cease operations. UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres strongly condemned the raid, stating the compound remains UN premises that are "inviolable and immune from interference." UNRWA chief Philippe Lazzarini warned the move sets a "dangerous precedent" for UN operations worldwide.

What's Driving the Fight?

Fighting has flared again on the Thailand-Cambodia border, breaking a fragile ceasefire agreed in July. Both sides accuse the other of starting the clashes, with Thai soldiers and Cambodian civilians reported killed since Monday, and Thailand launching airstrikes. The dispute is long-running, rooted in border lines drawn more than a century ago after French rule in Cambodia. Tensions worsened in 2008 over a contested 11th-century temple, triggering repeated flare-ups. The latest crisis escalated after a Cambodian soldier was killed in May, followed by border restrictions, trade bans, and troop buildups.

Crypto-as-a-Service

PNC Bank, the ninth-largest U.S. bank by assets, has become the first major American bank to offer direct Bitcoin trading to its institutional clients. Through a partnership with Coinbase, approved PNC Private Bank customers can now buy, sell, and hold Bitcoin directly through their existing PNC accounts using Coinbase's Crypto-as-a-Service platform. This eliminates the need for customers to create separate cryptocurrency exchange accounts, marking a major milestone in mainstream banking adoption of digital assets.
