Air Canada to resume flights to Mexico's Puerto Vallarta from Tuesday

Air Canada said it will restart full service from Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, on Tuesday, after briefly suspending flights amid violence triggered by the reported killing of cartel leader Nemesio Oseguera, known as “El Mencho.” The carrier added that Toronto-Guadalajara operations will resume on Wednesday. Air Canada joined United Airlines, Aeromexico and American Airlines in halting flights as road blockades and attacks disrupted access to western Mexico’s tourist region, and is monitoring security conditions closely daily.

Asia stocks try to steady after Wall St selloff dims mood

Asian markets steadied after an AI-driven selloff on Wall Street knocked confidence. MSCI’s Asia-Pacific ex-Japan index rose, with Taiwan and South Korea hitting record highs, while Japan’s Nikkei and China’s CSI 300 gained as markets played catch-up after holidays. The S&P 500 fell 1% and Nasdaq 1.1% overnight on fears AI could disrupt industries. Trade and geopolitics added stress: Trump renewed tariff threats, and China restricted dual-use exports to Japanese firms.

Ukraine reconstruction estimate jumps 12% to $588 billion, World Bank says

A joint assessment by the World Bank, UN, European Commission and Ukraine’s government estimates Ukraine’s reconstruction and recovery needs at about $588 billion over the next decade, a 12% rise from the previous estimate. The update covers damage from Feb. 24, 2022 through Dec. 31, 2025, and attributes much of the increase to a 21% jump in damaged or destroyed energy infrastructure. The estimate is nearly three times Ukraine’s projected nominal GDP for 2025.
