

Inform, Analyze, Empower

The Makana 360 Daily Monitor Report aims to provide timely and insightful updates on the most significant global news and top events, offering a concise overview of key developments that impact businesses, politics, and society. By curating and analyzing major trends, the report enhances awareness, facilitates informed decision-making, and supports strategic planning for our audience.

Europe and Japan ready to help steady energy prices and secure chokepoint

European powers and Japan said they are ready to help stabilise energy markets and support efforts to reopen the Strait of Hormuz after tit-for-tat strikes on Gulf energy facilities escalated the U.S.-Israeli war with Iran. Iranian attacks caused extensive damage to Qatar's Ras Laffan complex, knocking out a sixth of its LNG export capacity, while the UAE and Kuwait also suffered disruptions. Oil briefly surged 10% and gas prices jumped, heightening inflation fears and rattling markets. The move marks a shift by hesitant U.S. allies as the conflict threatens global energy security, shipping routes, economic stability, and worldwide trade flows.

Are US and Israel aligned on Iran war? Deciphering Trump's post after gas field attacks

Trump's response to the South Pars gas field attack suggests that the US and Israel are aligned broadly against Iran, but not fully on strategy. He claimed Washington had no prior knowledge of Israel's strike, though Israeli media reported coordination, raising questions about credibility and control. His wording implied frustration with Israel's actions and hinted at limits to US support for further escalation against energy infrastructure. While both countries share goals of weakening Iran's military capabilities, Israel appears more openly focused on destabilising the regime itself. Overall, the article suggests close military partnership, but growing tactical and political divergence beneath the surface.

Even Jerome Powell doesn't know what's going on with the economy

The article argues that Jerome Powell and the Federal Reserve are navigating an opaque economy shaped by overlapping shocks: tariffs, an oil-price spike, labor market distortions, housing costs, uncertain inflation and unclear AI effects. Powell repeatedly stressed uncertainty, acknowledging that even the Fed lacks confidence about whether pressures are temporary or lasting. This lack of clarity is freezing conviction in policymaking and raising concerns for businesses and consumers, who may delay hiring and spending. Although the Fed kept projections broadly unchanged, the piece suggests that stability reflects guesswork more than certainty, with policymakers struggling to interpret major economic signals across the economy.

Top Global Events

Event

Mentions
& Engagement

Most Reached
Media Coverage

FC Barcelona

12.2M

Lewandowski and Raphinha double up as Barcelona run riot against Newcastle

Fortnite

2.1M

Here's The Release Time For 'Fortnite' Chapter 7, Season 2: Showdown

Makana 360 is a leading political studies, and social media listening company dedicated to providing in-depth analysis and strategic insights. Through advanced monitoring and data-driven research, we help organizations navigate complex political and social landscapes.