Trump warns Taiwan against declaring independence, hours after summit with China's Xi

US President Donald Trump warned Taiwan against formally declaring independence from China following his summit with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing. Trump said US policy remains unchanged and urged both Taiwan and China to “cool down,” while avoiding a commitment on whether the US would defend Taiwan militarily. Xi reportedly stressed that Taiwan is the most important issue in US-China relations and warned that mishandling it could lead to conflict. The article also notes rising Chinese military drills around Taiwan and continued tensions over the island’s status.

Senior ISIS leader killed in joint operation, US and Nigeria say

Nigeria and the United States say they killed senior Islamic State leader Abu-Bilal al-Minuki in a joint operation in the Lake Chad Basin. US President Donald Trump described him as the “second in command of ISIS globally,” while Nigerian President Bola Tinubu said the strike dealt a major blow to IS. Nigerian officials said al-Minuki had built a fortified base in Borno State and was killed alongside several lieutenants after months of intelligence gathering. The article notes IS’s growing activity in sub-Saharan Africa and increased US-Nigeria military cooperation against extremist violence.

Canada deepens Arctic defense ties with Nordics after Trump threats

Canada is strengthening Arctic defense cooperation with Nordic countries amid Donald Trump’s threats regarding Greenland and growing Russian and Chinese activity in the region. Prime Minister Mark Carney is seeking closer ties with Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden through military procurement, defense production, Arctic security coordination, and diplomatic engagement. Greenland and Denmark are also studying Canada’s Ranger model for remote Arctic defense. While Canada aims to reduce reliance on the U.S., officials and experts stress that NORAD and U.S. military capabilities remain critical to defending Canada’s northern regions.
